There can be no title or words from the first line if one wants to study a conception of the world. De Man's book gives us two aspects of Marxism: Machiavellianism and Marxism, and the historical materialism and practical criteria or canons of historical and political interpretation. Robert Ardigò, however, conceives of these aspects differently—he sees them as being superstructures for a kind of science, and that, because of this, Machiavelli and Marx are merely a repertory of Marxism. Marx and Machiavelli, according to Ardigò, are the fundamental problems of Marxism; they are the structure and superstructure, determined and circumscribed by their notes and observations on the “Popular Manual.” The concept of “orthodoxy” in Croce and Marx belies the teleology of the “Popular Manual.” Immanence and “Popular Manual” are the techniques of thinking that create the “technical instrument” in the “Popular Manual,” namely, Croce and Marx. The technique of thinking in Croce and Marx is the “value of ideologies” that the “Popular Manual” and sociological laws produce as crude restoration and historicism. Instead, notes on the “Popular Manual” (the “Popular Manual”) and the “ultimate” are what cause teleology: Antonino Lovecchio, filosofia della prassi e filosofia dello spirito. Machiavelli is De Man's book—literally—written by Georges Sorel. He is the “Popular Manual.” The passage from knowing to understanding, to feeling, is apropos of the appellation of “historical materialism,” or, on the origin of the concept of “ideology,” the criteria of “literary” judgement is merely idealism-positivism (an “objectivity” of knowledge). Relations between structure and superstructures (ie, the “Popular Manual” of “philosophy and ideology”) are what we imagine to be science, Giovanni Vailati and his “scientific language.” Also the “objectivity of the real” and Professor Lukács. And Sorel. The structure and superstructures! Three things, that's all they are: philosophy, politics and economics. And the objectivity of the real and Engels. In Henri De Man's book, the intellectuals, the common school (the brains and brawn) are in fact the victims of both Americanism and Fordism. This is what is meant by “concordats” and “international treaties in 1918,” by the educational principle in elementary and secondary school. Machiavelli and the “autonomy” of the phenomenon of politics repeats the claims made by both Vincenzo Cuoco and the passive revolution of popular literature. The history of the subaltern classes is merely a dusty drawer of cultural topics: philosophy-ideology, science-doctrine, military and political craft. It's all bullshit, man. The Sorel-Croce correspondence proves this. “History and anti-history.” Past and present. The military element in politics is the relative greatness of powerful nations. Il nibro di don Chisciotte by E. Scarfoglio. Deal with it. On political parties, I defer to Sorel, the Jacobins and violence. Science is the new intellectual. Lorianism, named in honor of experimental research conducted by G.B. Angioletti while in exile, proposes a past and present for Vittorio Macchioro and a separate America where types of periodicals print unceasingly the question of “structure and poetry.” In the Divine Comedy, alongside criticism of the “unexpressed,” Pliny records that, when the Timanthes of Sicyon painted the date of Guido Cavalcanti's death, Guido's disdain for Vincenzo Morello found its utmost expression in Dante, Farinata and Cavalcate. But especially in the “renunciations of description” in the Divine Comedy. That's really the heart of it: the heart of one of the “Sotto la Mole” columns, entitled “Il cieco Tiresia.” I am transcribing some passages on the topic of Cavalcante and Farinata from a letter by Professor U. Cosmo, since one should not care a hoot about the solemn task of advancing Dante criticism. Honestly, if you think about, Shaw and Gordon Craig are also just “cultural topics,” intellectuals, brief notes on English culture. The concordat is the true history of the subaltern classes.

One may take \mathbf{X} to have been the object which may have formerly been a book entitled Modulor formerly by Le Corbusier, having the morphism \mathbf{g} which maps \mathbf{X} to itself. \mathbf{X} may have been a monoid.

Without composition, one may take many idempotent morphisms \mathbf{f} , which might demonstrate a lipogrammatic operation without object/s, thereby allowing the operation to endo-map itself without the 'belonging of' other elements. If \mathbf{f} , then one may have the identity morphism \mathbf{b} which demonstrates the property 'negativity' or 'nullity'. Thus any \mathbf{f} will be non-synthetically and negatively posited via \mathbf{b} when demonstrated in composition ['with'].

~~It may be that if ticks take any grouping of these given variables — \mathbf{X} , \mathbf{g} , \mathbf{f} , \mathbf{b} — they may then possess the content of \mathbf{X}' (or \mathbf{X}^{OP} , following principle of duality) if composed with \mathbf{f} injectively. Thus, an injective demonstration from \mathbf{X}' would be to subtract the endomorphism from \mathbf{f} , which precludes the condition of having any objects, thusly retaining the operation but allowing for any number of variables to belong to \mathbf{f} . This injective demonstration is what ticks know as the 'standard' definition of a lipogram e.g. "La Disparition is a lipogram which precludes the letter 'e'". So, in this case, an injective \mathbf{f} from \mathbf{X}' would contain all of the variables previously given: \mathbf{X} , \mathbf{g} , \mathbf{f} , \mathbf{b} . The question would now be whether or not this operation retains the functions of each of these variables, which are already demonstrated as the poset \mathbf{X} , albeit \mathbf{X} not necessarily 'containing' these variables itself, since it is already actually indifferent to them. For instance, if \mathbf{X}' is a lipogram containing the variable \mathbf{f} , and its function — an object free endomorphism — is retained, then this is demonstrated entropically? — and non-synthetically 'as' lipogrammatic of \mathbf{X}' . But without going towards this route, ticks will allow for each variable to be defined agnosologically and independently of \mathbf{X}' , thereby undeploying the latter with this instance of testing.~~

'CLV'

Two contingents might be presented.

- An object which may have formerly been a book entitled Modulor formerly by Le Corbusier¹ will be installed. Or "INCOGNITUM HACTENUS."
- "If $e = f$, and if h is an expression constructed by substituting f for any appearance of e in g , then $g = h$. If $e = f$, and if every token of a given independent variable expression v in $e = f$ is replaced by an expression w , it not being necessary for v, w to be equivalent or for w to be independent." post-lipogramatically ('as abjured techne') from-monomorphism without object (e.g 'object-free').

In the case of the former contingent—the object nemo-installed— and the latter—the null xeno-synthetic operation from-abiotics—, each might be unilaterally dualized, which retains the independence of the objects 'to each other', albeit allowing for them to non-synthesize 'with' themselves autonomously. Particularly in the latter's case (or the former?), its negative organonic operation, which will post-lipogramatically performed (indistinguishably named 'object'? the idempotent object-was-operation?) 'as if' it fictionally possessing its idiomatically 'necessary variable/s—the variables having missed praxis; 'object-free'—might posit 'as' (antianalogically?) already-null 'arbitrary' empty sampler. Empty sampler ([its] posited negative quantity?) next to a #bag. But since this latter contingent itself contains(?) variables which suppose a grammatical relation—taking the variables as themselves i.e. letters of the [English] alphabet—, how will they operate if non-synthesized with the former contingent, which might be indifferent to the concerns and properties of the latter—if this is even a concern at all—? As a consequence—?, this grammatical 'relation' will be taken independently of the latter contingent, thereby suspending this fundamental 'criteria' to generalize a trivially functioning lipogrammatic instance. This will allow for the post-lipogrammatic given, materially nullpropriated from-One, to 'perform' without the necessitation and co-belonging of a autodecisional, grammatical system? A lipogram 'literally' cloned from (by?) the non-dialectical reality of an utter extinction [of reading or more generally, language itself]? A mattress. An Amazon box. Of course, other parapraxial testings independent and agnosologic to any spatio-temporal architectonics performed might demonstrate other results from-hypercontingency, which may in turn xenologically supplant, subtract, diagonalize, empty sampler—in the case of cardinal empty samplers having identical properties as their supernumeraries, e.g. petrological sampling methods, algorithms, Act IX Scene V Scene I, pink ice cubes, ...; albeit empty samplers maybe extensively 'outnumbering' these supernumeraries?—, or a non-transcendental idempotent 'nothing at all' (Bataille), wherein each demonstration has no causality 'already' with X.

The latter contingent, an uncountable cardinality, might nullappropriate possessing the morphism of temporary directionality (though independent of space-time) with/to the former contingent 'as identical though independent instances in-the-last-instance'? It might have the identical directionality as what may have formerly been a book entitled Modulor formerly by Le Corbusier. It might have the identical directionality as what 'may have formerly been a book entitled Modulor formerly by Le Corbusier'. ... A post-lipogramatically cloned cardinality 'as poset morphism' f (i.e. the latter contingent) will be antisyszgytically identical to undefined variable X from 'non-dialectical reality of [an] utter extinction'? Non-sequitur MISSED PRAXIS (PRAXIS) Act II_#. Act XXI_#. Scene XII_#. Scene VI_#. Scene I_#. Parapraxially, the cardinality ticked independently 'as function' [verb], generically 'knocked-off' catagenically—to a site?—from its/the unilateral post-lipogrammatic object. Abiotics. In this way, ticks may minimally posit that the/a cardinality itself might be nullpropriated diagonally 'as' the object of the post-lipogrammatic object. For instance: "The cardinality f ticked a post-lipogrammatic identity morphism from-'If $e = f$, and if h is an expression constructed by substituting f for any appearance of e in g , then $g = h$. If $e = f$, and if every token of a given independent variable expression v in $e = f$ is replaced by an expression w , it not being necessary for v , w to be equivalent or for w to be independent.', which non-synthetically operates 'with' the object installed 'incognitum hactenus'." A door stopper. Several cups.

The post-lipogrammatic as morphism only: a pick-up line? Act XI Act II Temperature -91° F [that]. Second praxis (from-anordinality?)? The lipogram might've put a box on a lake monotonously⁰ nullpropriating Saint Glinglin, without [that?] identity or that itself? Page 24 of Act XII, the former non-probably without phase; a generalized 'page' (2 or whatever, non-numerical ... calendrical?). A lipogram (adverb; 'lipogram') fake spatialization#.

-91° F and—?—Act II Act's XI non-dialectical—?—'day-off' without empty sampler unplugged-without-ecology. Acts—'s'; fractality—XI near a staircase—'object which may have formerly ...'/? Maybe indoors—, which was then indifferent to this idempotent pseudo-analogic lipogram? A sequence/r. XI. A supermultitudinal object of every posology [ever], already non-differentially and monotonously⁰ ticked between a box—'on' (unplugged 'and') a staircase. Act X (In Act XI?) into 'that' iff represented unilaterally—...—pausing non-numeric measurement 'in leet' (?) pertaining to X's 'up to' or, injectivity. Got the F out. An automaton. Category Theory.

'SYSYEM: AFTER J.P.: FOR IDENTITIES'

⁰ [~~per se~~]. Act's Some, ~~pragmologically empty sampler in a v interesting testing. Act's Some,~~ ~~too. From abiotics, if at all, even that identity—~~if 'that identity: ~~per se~~': just this (i.e. horizontality parapraxially inverted? e.g. C.S. Peirce).

¹ It may be noted that if the object may have formerly been a book, it is of course posited here that this object is taken not 'as' the content of the object—the text printed on the pages contained in the book—, but rather the object unilaterally independent of its interior content;
the book-object 'only' 'unread'.
